TENNESSEE

Happenings Over Commonwealth Gleaned From Various Places

Greenfield.-The shipping of berries, truck and poultry is heavier here now than for years.

Knoxville - The Knoxville city commission will fight the new telephone rates put into effect May 1 by the Cumberland company.

Nashville.- The supreme court is in session at the state capitol. The greater part of the docket consists of term cases from Shelby county.

Huntingdon.-The members of the Woman's club of Huntingdon have reorganized, after being disbanded during the war for war work.

Knoxville.--Mrs. Rhoda England and Mrs. Esta Braden, of Oliver Springs, both aged about 65, were killed by a freight train near Oliver Union City.-The movement on foot in this county to build a hospital as a memorial to the Obion county boys who fought in the world war is growing rapidly.

Nashville.-Forty-seven out of sixtyfour hotels inspected in the state during the month of April were found to be in bad condition, according to the report of Harry L. Eskew.

Chattanooga.-Dr. Walter W. Young of Atlanta attempted to commit suicide at a local hotel here by severing the arteries in his ankles and slashing his wrist with a safety razor.

Chattanooga.-The Tennessee osteo pathic association will meet here Friday and Saturday, and several eminent practitioners from other states are to appear on the program.

Nashville.-The first equal suffrage state convention since the women were given the vote in city and presidential elections is called for June 4 and 5, to be held in Nashville.

Centreville.-Tom Holland, a farmer living at Graham, this county, was found dead in a mudhole where it is supposed he fell from his horse in an attack of illness and was drowned.

Ripley.-News has been received here of the killing of Warner Peacock at his home at Ashport, 16 miles west of here on the Mississippi river, and Frenk Bunn is charged with the crime, Ripley.-A representative meeting of the physicians and business men of Ripley was held at the courthouse to discuss plans for the erection of a county hospital at Ripley.

Nashville.-The dead body of John H. King, 73, widower, and member of one of the most prominent families in Rutherford county, was found under a brush pile near his home at King-Knoxville.-A dangerous maniac entering the homes of Knoxville resiresidents night after night, is terrorizing the women of this city and is baffling all efforts of the police to capture him.

Nashville.-Gov. Roberts has commissioned three of Nashville's young ladies to play an important part in the pageant to be staged in Memphis on May 20-24 to celebrate that city's onehundredth anniversary.

Dyersburg.-Walter Irwin, a young farmer employed on Moss Bros.' farm, five miles south of this city, was killed and Irwin Talbert, a restaurant employe of this city, is in the county jail charged with murder.

Nashville.-The Nashville Rotary club has launched a campaign for $50,-000 to buy a good farm for Sergeant Alvin G. York, 328th Infantry, the Tennessean halled as "the greatest individual hero of the war."

Chattanooga. — Instructions have been received here from the general Y. W. C. A. headquarters in New York directing Miss Bessie Urquhart, hostess, to close the hostess house at Fort Oglethorpe on June 1.

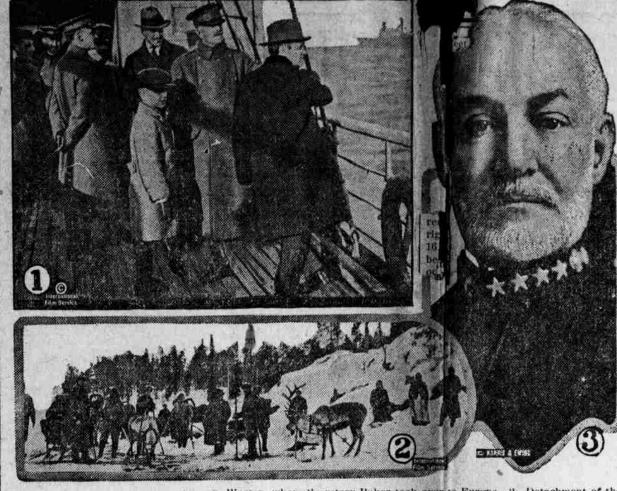

Nashville.-Provision for the great educational campaign of the Southern Methodist church for $23,000,000 for the various schools, colleges and universities of the church was made at meeting of the education board.

Nashville.—An interesting program was rendered at St. Ann's church at the unveiling of a bronze tablet by the affiliating chapters of the United Daughters of the Confederacy of Nashville in memory of Mrs. Kate Litton Humboldt .- The Cumberland Presbyterian church of this city is being improved and remodeled.

Nashville.-Dr. A. G. Buckner, formerly adjutant-general of the state, was unanimously elected by the state board of health to the position of director of dental hygiene.

Greenfield.-Great preparations are being made by Greenfield and adjacent surroundings to invade Dresden when the Burk Culpepper revival begins there on the 22d instant.

... 1918 son, Warren, whom Secretary Baker took over to Europe. 2-Detachment of the Finnish legion with sleighs and reindeer on the march against the bolshevik!. 2-New photograph of Rear Admiral Sims, who has been working for the Victory loan since his return from abroad.

WHERE THE BUSINESS OF THE PANAMA CANAL IS HANDLED

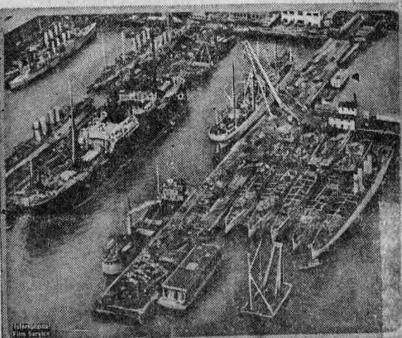

A general view of the large shops and drydock at Balbon, the Pacific entrance to the Panama canal. Everything is in full readiness here to handle the increased traffic which is bound to ensue with settled peace conditions.

EX-EMPEROR IN EXILE IN SWITZERLAND

Ex-Emperor Carl of Austria-Mungary sented between two companions at his place of exile in Switzerland, and, above, Wartegg castle, his place of residence there.

NEWPORT NEWS SHIPYARDS FROM AIR

Unusually interesting photograph of the shipyards at Newport News, Va. taken from an airplane. The view shows many of the transports and supply ships which have carried men and munitions between this country and France.

MADE NEW FLIGHT RECORD

leutenant Commander H. B. Grow N., who piloted the naval hydro, in a 24-hour flight, starting from folk, Va., and circling over Hamproads, Newport News, then to imore and return. The record is talk of aviation circles in the Unit-States. With the commander were e ensigns. They all took turns at wheel, but the ranking officer was most of the trip. They ate three ils in the air. The flight was made unfavorable weather con-

The men suffered severely the cold, but the muchine beed splendidly and could have reued in the air longer had not the been exhausted. T'ey left with gallons and when the machine uled there was scarcely two gallons to to bies

Tantalized.

"you don't enjoy gardening." No. I writates me. Too many fishorms and no chance to go foling"

BLUFFMEETS BLUFF

By GLADYS P. ANDERSEN.

Ivy Gray sank on a little stool behind the counter at Morey's department store, tired and exhausted. It was with an effort that she dragged her reluctant feet homeward at the close of the day. Home to Ivy meant bare, cheerless rooms.

"I'm tired and sick of this life," she confided the next day to her chum. Carolyn Jewell, "and I'm going to live a real life for once, if it's only for a month, even if I have to put up a big bluff to do it. For three years I have held this position, without a vacation and without a complaint, and now I rebel!" and her dark eyes flashed deflantly.

"I don't blame you in the least," admitted Carolyn; "and I hope that you will succeed with your plans, whatever they happen to be."

Once within her room that night Ivy carefully studied herself before her little mirror. She was beautiful to gaze upon when one analyzed her features closely; but she did not overdress and her loveliness oftimes passed by unnoticed. She had a comfortable savings account, and she was going to see Palm Beach, and see it right, if it took her last cent.

With this thought in her mind, and with her daintlest, smartest dresses and shoes in her trunk, she started out on her wonderfully mysterious and adventurous vacation. Two weeks had passed, and although Ivy was the sensation of the little hotel at which she registered as Jeanette DeVere, she had not yet met anyone really worth while. She noticed and cultivated the manners and costumes of the society women there. Upon the Monday of her last week she made up her mind that she would bathe at Randall's beach and dine at the casino in the evening. Securing a bathing house, she donned her chic little bathing suit and was the center of attraction as she walked daintily across the sand and stepped timidly in the surf. Not noticing the gigantic breaker ahead, she plunged into the water, and when she came up she found herself staring into the eyes of a wonderfully good-looking and exceedingly surprised young

"That was some dive!" he exclaimed admiringly. Ivy brushed the water from her sparkling brown eyes and admitted that the sea was a bit boisterous. "I'll challenge you for a swim to that rowboat out there," she said mischievously, making up her mind that she would pick up an acquaintance or die at the attempt.

"On one condition," he agreed: "If beat you to the boat you have to take luncheon with me."

"It's a bargain," Ivy replied, and they both dove in and struck out for the boat, he swimming with all his might to reach it before her, and it was with just one last mighty effort that he did. Then she faced him and

"I lose," she said, dropping her eyes. I suppose I am forced to lunch with you."

·Later she was leaning back in his luxurious touring car and breathing the bracing sea air. They sped on and on, taking in the beautiful scenery, and finally halted before a pretty little road bouse and lunched on the veranda overlooking the sea. Had he not been so completely wrapped up in Ivy, he might have noticed her paleness and hesitation, when she said: "I am Jeanette DeVere of New York, and am on an extended tour with my parents." Likewise, had Ivy not been so fascinated by this unique experience, she, too, might have seen a guilty look steal across her companion's face when he replied: "I am Richard Vandercup of Chicago, my profession is a lawyer, and I am here on a much needed vacation."

Ivy gasped! How was it all going to end? What would he say when he learned the truth, he, a noted lawyer of Chicago, lunching at Palm Beach with a mere clerk.

At last the car stopped at a little shady lane of palms. It was Ivy who broke the silence. "Mr. Vandercup, I fear I won't be able to see you again." He started as though an explosion had occurred. "You, you mean I can't see you off tomorrow!" "You won't care to when I tell you the truth. Did you ever tell a white lie, Mr. Vandercup?" "I've told a few, but I'm not absolute ly certain of the shade," he confessed. "I told one of a few days ago which I think came nearer to being a black one but I will let you be the judge. My name is not Vandercup, neither am I a lawyer. I am just plain Jack Harrison, a chauffeur for Mrs, Vandercup, and borrowed her name that I might become acquainted with you, and that little story," he added slowly, "was just a little fabrication of my own." Ivy's heart gave a joyous bound. "And I," she whispered sweetly, "am not Jeannette DeVere, but just Ivy Gray, a clerk in one of New York's department stores." Before he had time to overcome his surprise, she added, "you see we live in a world of schemers, and this is a case of when bluff meets bluff." She gave him her hand, "this has been one glorious vacation and now Cinderella must depart in haste."

Placing his arm around her waist and drawing her toward him, Ivy was too happy to resist. During the days that followed, Ivy Gray had no cause to complain of a hamdrum life. "Some thing new" had come into her life and his name was Jack Harrison.

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure News

Columbus, O. 21 E. Rich St. CONSERVATION PRODUCTS CO.

build a permanent, substantial business. Write for details now. in every town in the State of Ohio. Be the man in your territory. We teach you how to We are going to put a distrib-utor of Mu-Ex Fire Appliances

You Live? Where Do

Two Big Sacks of Tonic Food. Try It1 Also mix a little BEE DEE regularly with your afock and poultry fead. One 30e can will make Appetite and Colds. Troubles, Loss of sick animals such troubles Give it to your and towis for Used Over

Your Store Today! Stock & Poultry Medicine at Get a Can of Bee Dee

Wife-Well, let's smoke less,

Husband-We'll have to economize, The Beginning of Economy.

"Mercy, no! We've been married only family, Mr. Newpop?" Mr. Newpop-Finebred-"Is yours an .gninnigsa taut

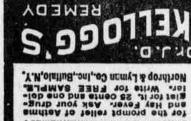

The purgative properties of Wright's Indian Vesterble Fills are, the natural result of their tonic section. Hence they are the ideal Spring medicine.—adv.

Transcript.

mad and smash the box,"-Boston "He won't, and therefore he won't get gageman to understand that?"

"Huh! How do you expect a bag-"is the Latin for 'Handle with care," "That," replied the college graduate, uo What's this gibberish you've scrawled mark this box 'Handle with care,' "I told you," said the merchant, "to He Knew Them.

DR. J. D. KELLOGG'S ASTHMA REMEDY

POSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y. DOVA. 2 RIDNER

Three boxes completely cured recretions passed too the frequency and con-trequently and con-trined different medicines but got no tried different medicines but got no benefit. I finally used poor's feliciney defines a.k. wearth.

fered with such a fered wi

An Ohio Case

harties, you must not quickly to gravel, the more sorious trouble, dropsy, gravel, heart disease, Bright's disease, Use Doan's Kidney Fills, the remedy that as so warmly recommended everywhere by grateful users. There's little peace when your kidere neys are weak and while at first there may be nothing more serious than dull backache, sharp, stabbing pains, head sorbes, drays spells and kidney integures to make the control of the control o back Lame and Achy